

CONTRIBUTORS

---

FORREST PASS is a doctoral candidate in History at the University of Western Ontario. His research explores several aspects of the relationship between national and regional consciousness in Canada, using British Columbia as a case study. He is also editor of the Canadian History and Canadian Studies discussion forum, H-Canada.

KATHARINE ROLLWAGEN is a doctoral candidate at the University of Ottawa. Her article, "When Ghosts Hovered: Community and Crisis in a Company Town, Britannia Beach, B.C., 1957-1965," will appear in a forthcoming issue of Urban History Review.

MELANIE BUDDLE teaches history and Canadian studies at Trent University in Peterborough, Ontario. Her most recent publication is "The Business of Women: Female Entrepreneurship in British Columbia, 1901-1941," Journal of the West, vol. 43, no. 2, (Spring 2004). Her current research project is a post-Second World War comparison of self-employed women in Peterborough, Ontario and Victoria, BC. She completed her PhD at the University of Victoria in 2003.