

Contributors

A. Ross McCormack is an historian at the University of Winnipeg.

D. L. Matters is a recent graduate of the University of Victoria, presently studying the origins and development of social welfare institutions in British Columbia.

D. G. Paterson teaches Economics at the University of British Columbia.